Visiting Hours

Synopsis

Alison Reynolds knows exactly who she is and what she wants. With a well-established career as a history professor, Alison is professional and, for the most part, strait-laced—â the exact opposite of Dr. Jess Baker. Jess is spirited, impulsive, and confident to the point of cockiness. A promising physician recently transplanted from the West Coast, Jess sticks out in her new home of Richmond, Virginia. The two clash immediately and often. Jess is infuriating, unprofessional, and altogether too distracting. She also seems to be trying awfully hard to get Alison's attention. The more fate throws them together, the more Alison discovers that while their differences may be exciting, itâs the little ways they're alike that are downright irresistible.

Customer Reviews

Alison Reynolds is a history professor with an impressive resume'. She meets Dr. Jess Baker when her best friend Beth, is in the hospital with a complicated pregnancy and Jess is her doctor. Allison is a proud native of Richmond, Virginia. Jess is a transplant from Portland, Oregon, and is not too impressed with tradition bound Richmond, and she's not afraid to share her opinion with Alison. Alison visits her best friend, Beth almost every day as the pregnancy progresses. Beth has a history of many miscarriages and this pregnancy is fraught with problems. Naturally, Jess and Alison have many opportunities to see and get to know each other during her hospital visits. The two women are definitely attracted to each other and soon Alison is making plans with Jess to show her some of the sights around Richmond. As their friendship grows and they share past relationship history, it's obvious that both women have been hurt. Now, can the two strong, professional women get past their personal histories and dare to build on the attraction they share.
