Jack Wears Glasses And A Patch... JUST LIKE YOU!

Synopsis

Spend the day with Jack, a fun loving kid who loves to play with his sister and friends, and who also happens to wear glasses and a patch! This book is designed to show all of our glasses-wearing children that they are not alone in their daily adventures with glasses and trips to the eye doctor. This book has wonderfully colorful illustrations and was written with the feedback of many other parents whose children wear glasses. And although the author's other books specifically cater to children affected by congenital cataracts, this title is appropriate for any child who wears glasses. This book is a wonderful resource for kids ages 1-8. Author's note: The illustrations and content of this book are almost identical to "Jack Wears Contact Lenses and Glasses... JUST LIKE YOU! A day in the life of a bilateral aphakic child". This book is a customized version for those children who do not wear contact lenses.

Jack gets rewarded/bribed into doing things I want my kid to do because she has a good attitude about life (which is working out well so far). I worry that Jack is going to grow up to have no idea why he goes and buys a disposable trinket at Walmart and an ice cream cone to make himself feel better when he has had a bad day.

Great book for my daughters new glasses but they repeat pages from other books ... Like Samantha wears contacts and a patch. I was kind of bummed but my 2 year old doesn't care

My little 1st grader needed a patch and glasses. This book (and others) made her feel comfortable with her situation.

My daughter, who wears glasses, loves this book! We struggle keeping her glasses on her, and it's wonderful that she sees Jack go to the eye doctor, just like she does, and sees him enjoy his daily activities all while wearing glasses. She's gone back to this book again and again, and it does help showing her many positive examples of wearing glasses!

This book is fantastic. I love how it explains how Jack does so many things so he can continue to enjoy wearing his glasses. I also enjoy how it gets other kids reading the book to also think and answer the questions on some of the pages. My son enjoyed interacting by answering all of the questions. Well done!
