Corrected By The Doctor: Victorian First Time Exhibitionist Medical

Synopsis

"It's a technique used to combat deviant behaviour in female prisoners. It should be ideal here." When Violet discovers she's been seen pleasuring herself she's mortified and expects to be instantly dismissed from her job. Instead she finds herself taken to Dr. Howell's training establishment where the doctor is keen to correct her exhibitionist behaviour. An unusual vegetable punishment and a session with a paddle are only the start of her humiliation. Violet quickly discovers the pleasure she's always given herself is nothing compared to the pleasure of a first time experience from two men eager to show her the error of her ways. Just how much correction will she need before she can return to her employer?

Customer Reviews

Dr. Howell has a training clinic for young doctors, and he also happens to specialize in correction. So when Violet, the young laundry maid, got caught pleasuring herself in the garden, she left her employer, Mr. Grigson no choice but to ask if the doctor was willing to take her on. Of course this type behavior (she was an exhibitionist and likely a slut) was not something that could be corrected immediately; it was going to take some time to explore her vices properly. The doctor administered various methods of arousal as the poor servant girl pretended modesty and embarrassment. There was one particular procedure, where he pushed a piece of freshly peeled ginger into the young maid's bottom before a thorough paddling, that convinced me that she was in good hands. It now seems that Violet may be even more immoral than originally believed, and I certainly hope that proves to be true.
