He'd grown into a dangerously sexy man-all the more reason to keep a safe distance. Suzanna wouldn't risk her well-ordered life for a man who could make her mouth go dry with a simple glance. Megan's Mate Calhoun sister-in-law Megan O'Riley and her young son have traveled far to become the Towers' newest residents and begin a fresh chapter in their lives. Great conclusion to the saga

I loved it.

Bought it to complete a series and then loaned it to three friends. We were all very happy with the book. Nora Roberts, of course, we were happy with it.

I love most of Nora Roberts books. This was two installments from a 4 part series. I loved the first two and these were great as well. I always enjoy her characters. She makes them quirky and likeable even though they are often flawed and difficult. Much like real people. By the end of the book they seem like old friends. These stories are romance but with mystery and danger involved as well, along with some treasure hunting thrown in. Interspersed with the current story is the story of a doomed romance which happened generations ago that ends in tragedy but throughout there is hope that there will be closure for the descendants along with hope for the future. Great writing as always.

I really enjoy Nora Roberts books, she has the ability to draw one in and hold that interest throughout the story. Her books "to me" are worth the read. I have many from her collection, Hidden Riches, True Betrayals, Homeport, The Reef, Villa, Calhoun collection and more. Haven't had a bad read yet.

This installment of the Calhoun women finished the saga very well and was a very satisfying end to the story. I always enjoy a good Nora Roberts tale.

This is the last one in the series, so good, I hate to see it end.

Interest grabbing story with links between the central characters. Had read others in the series and just had to find out how the mystery was solved. And the love matches were made.
